For shame,

Anti-trust was put into place to protect Joe public.... As I see it, it has not been enforced in 20 years. How about going after Microsoft and every other company pre-selling product with no product ready to ship or a responsible shipment date. Or any company that sells beta ware waiting for the public to test it and than usually charges for the upgrade. If they sold a car with non-functioning brakes you would be all over them due to the deaths involved.

How bout doing the right thing for a change and find for the public and not with corporate America who can not be held responsible for anything.... or so it seems
